Sea Temperature May Affect Food Supplies of Man

LA JOLLA, CALIF.—Ocean temperatures are the present concern of oceanographers. The Scripps Institution of Oceanography here has begun a project of plotting undersea temperatures that may continue for generations. The ocean is no longer simply of academic interest to zoologists and biologists. Lately it has become interesting as a future source of chemicals and food substances. Oceanographers have done a lot of charting and studying of sea features of oceans, such as depth, terrain and major currents. But they admit the vast lack of knowledge of detailed matters—for instance, the interaction of ocean waves and the atmosphere, and the factors in phenomena, such as marine life.

Large Scale Project
To fill in the extensive void in knowledge about ocean temperatures, the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla, Calif., has expanded its project of plotting sea temperatures. The project is a large-scale project of plotting sea temperatures. The project is a large-scale project of plotting sea temperatures. The project is a large-scale project of plotting sea temperatures.

Since temperatures not only at the surface but at every level are significant, since the average depth of the earth's oceans is estimated at 3,688 meters, and since temperatures may change from hour to hour, many observations might be taken at a single point. Since the area covered in the Scripps survey is about 100,000,000 square miles, it will be a long time before even superficial observations can be completed.

The Bathymograph
Complicating the task is the fact that scientific temperatures cannot be taken just by dunking a thermometer on a string. Oceanographers use a bathymograph—a brass cylinder about a yard long weighing about thirty pounds. It contains apparatus that records temperature, as the cylinder is lowered on a cable, by a stylus scratch across a smoked-glass plate one inch by two inches.

In the laboratory these plates, marked with the location, date and time, are photographed through a grid that measures the scratch. The result is a graph of temperature variation at different depths at one point.

At present, such studies are concentrated at present are in the Aleutian Island region, the stretch between California and Hawaii and between Hawaii and the South Pacific Islands—shipping and fishing zones where temperature may help analysis of weather and marine life.

Ancient Auto Resembles Dragon More Than Car
LAVANNAH, ENGLAND—A few hours after Alec Hodson inadvertently crashed his steam-driven motor car for sale at 150 pounds ($420), a buyer telephoned that he would like to send him a check right away. But Hodson hesitated.

He wanted to see the buyer first to make sure he really respected and understood antiques, and besides, there was a little explaining to do.

"It has eight major knobs to push or pull, and five assorted water and pressure pumps, once you light her up with a match," he said. "It's fair to say that driving it is a whole time job. The time is never passed in boredom or preoccupation with scenery."

"Another snag is that when you light the engine, flames about a foot high, blue and intense, hot, leap from a kind of huge circular brazier. In a few minutes the heat is so great that it scorches you."

"Once lighted, there can be no hanging about. You have decided to go for a spin and you are committed to it."

"Finally, when you drive a vehicle of this kind people are apt to regard it as peculiar."

B's in a Bus, Not a Hive, Buzz Toward Los Angeles
TROY, N. Y.—Eighteen Baylys piled into the family bus recently headed for Los Angeles. This number includes three generations—children, parents and grandparents.

When Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bayly recently decided to take their first vacation in 20 years, they bought a school bus. That's what they needed for their 14 children and Bayly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archer Bayly.

Bayly, 38, packed a small field when for cooking. When practical, the family slept in a 16 foot tent.

When Bayly children were christened, names beginning with "B" were selected. The roster runs like this:

Beverly, 18; Buddy, 17; Barry, 16; Barbara, 14; Betty, 13; Bradley, 12; Brian, 10; Bernice, 8; Blake, 7; Brenda, 6; Bernadette, 4; Beryl, 3; Bernard, 2; Benjamin, 1.

Earl Sets Up Roadside Mart To Save Estate

LONDON.—The traveler or motorist passing Stafford may stop at the roadside and buy apples and cabbages grown by the premier earl of England and Ireland. Not exactly from his lordship, of course, but certainly from the 34-year-old Earl of Shrewsbury and Waterford. The earl lives in a stately English hall and is known locally as the "little barrow boy."

The vegetable stand is not a pose or a stunt. The roadside enterprise, the earl explains, is just a commonsense effort to help save an acre in the prime earl's estate. It was created in 1942, and while it is not the oldest earl in the land, it is the first in prestige protocol.

Cash Running Out
Under the terms of the will which left the earl the land, it is the first in prestige protocol.

When the earl decided he had to retrench by selling some lands which had been in the family since the year 1710 he arranged, as far as possible, to have his old tenants buy the properties they occupied. The sale was necessary, said the

and the earl, passing out from produce, is by no means a pauper—he has a 100-acre estate. One measure was the sale of a third of the 6,000-acre estate; another was the sale of the vegetable stand. The earl formerly sold produce and game to dealers and restaurants. He decided to reduce prices to the ultimate consumer and increase his own earnings by cutting out the middleman.

He now dreams of setting up a string of stands and shops to be provided by the thousands of acres still under his control.

He is equally proud of the sign on the vegetable stand which in forms the passer that the 21st earl of Shrewsbury and Waterford is "Home to deal in game." Such licenses are difficult to get, but the earl has his. Some of the game for sale is shot by the earl himself in the woods and fields about Ingstree Hall.

The auction sale of about 2,000 acres, divided into 13 farms and numerous small plots, was a spectacular example of what is happening in Britain's aristocracy. It's not as cushy to be an earl as it was

Kris Kringle's Cookies

"How to Make Christmas Cookies" can be the real title of this story. For what child does not love the anticipation of Christmas almost as much as the day itself? Let's get the youngsters up in the cookie-making business by having mother first make up two batches of cookies—one for regular sugar cookies and the other for chocolate cookies. Then everyone joins in cutting with a couple of fancy-shaped cutters. Various decorations are added before baking: colored sugar crystals, red cinnamon candies, nuts, currants and citron. When the cookies come out of the oven, the fun really begins with fancy wrappings—and a stolen bite or two.

Chocolate Cookies
2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1 1/2 cups calumet baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, adding baking powder, salt, and sift again. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add vanilla. Add flour and beat well. Add flour, a small amount at a time, mixing well after each addition. Chill until firm enough to roll. Roll 1/4 inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut with floured cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet; bake in hot oven (400° F.) 10 to 12 minutes.

To Color Sugar Dissolve a bit of coloring in a teaspoon of water; sprinkle over unrolled paper until dry. This gives attractive large crystals of colored sugar for decorating.

Girl's Faith In Convict Wins Him Freedom In Court
BALTIMORE.—Because of a girl's faith in a convict, he got out of jail, but he must make restitution of money obtained by robbery.

Criminal court judge Robert Francis suspended a 10-year prison sentence he had imposed on William J. Sanbury for forgery, placing him on probation for three years. The judge said he was suspending the sentence chiefly because of Peggy's faith in Sanbury.

The two met while Sanbury was in an inmate of San Quentin prison sentence he had imposed on William J. Sanbury for forgery, placing him on probation for three years. The judge said he was suspending the sentence chiefly because of Peggy's faith in Sanbury.

Her plea was so eloquent, her faith in Sanbury so vast that the man she loved got his freedom. But they must marry for a year and Sanbury must pay back his forgery take. That was the judge's ruling.

Farm Bureau Head Urges Farmers To Vote For 1950 Quotas

Says Issue Whether Farmers Make Or Lose On '50 Crop

Alabama cotton farmers will vote December 15 on whether or not acreage allotments or marketing quotas will be effective in 1950, but the real issue is "whether the farmers will make or lose money growing cotton," according to Walter L. Randolph, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation.

There is plenty of room for planting in the parkways and it is urged that the women get behind the project. Filling and grading the area between the courthouse and the drives will be finished at an early date.

Mayor Mullins suggested that the shrubbery now around the courthouse be removed in favor of more attractive shrubs. He says the only way in which the shrubbery serves is to harbor gnats and other insects.

Mayor Mullins also calls attention to the fact that two of the three large trees on the east side of the courtyard are on the south side of the walk and not only obscure the building from view from the street but also presents an unbalanced appearance. Removal of the tree would be a great aid in the appearance of the building. After the other tree is trimmed there will still be a large shade on that side of the building. This arrangement will leave a tree near each corner of the courtyard.

This column hopes that the ladies clubs will accept the challenge and take action on this project. The Elba courtyard can be made into a very attractive square.

Paving of the drives has been completed with the exception of a coat of blacktop. As soon as this is applied the drives will be lined off, thus eliminating much of the confusion in parking.

Plans call for walks to be built from each corner of the yard to each corner of the building. There is still much work to be done on this part of the project, but it is well underway and cooperation of all citizens is essential.

The ladies clubs can give the movement a big boost by planting the ball rolling, and planting the outside parkways with beautiful flowers. Let's hear from the ladies.

About People and Things

By C. B. McDowell

Up To Ladies Now

For several years Elba ladies clubs have been agitating for beautification of the City square and court house yards. This week the city street department leveled off the 10 foot wide parkways on all sides of the square and they are now ready for planting. It has been suggested that they be planted with roses and azaleas so that they will be pretty at different seasons of the year; azaleas in the spring and roses during the summer months.

There is plenty of room for planting in the parkways and it is urged that the women get behind the project. Filling and grading the area between the courthouse and the drives will be finished at an early date.

Mayor Mullins suggested that the shrubbery now around the courthouse be removed in favor of more attractive shrubs. He says the only way in which the shrubbery serves is to harbor gnats and other insects.

Mayor Mullins also calls attention to the fact that two of the three large trees on the east side of the courtyard are on the south side of the walk and not only obscure the building from view from the street but also presents an unbalanced appearance. Removal of the tree would be a great aid in the appearance of the building. After the other tree is trimmed there will still be a large shade on that side of the building. This arrangement will leave a tree near each corner of the courtyard.

This column hopes that the ladies clubs will accept the challenge and take action on this project. The Elba courtyard can be made into a very attractive square.

Paving of the drives has been completed with the exception of a coat of blacktop. As soon as this is applied the drives will be lined off, thus eliminating much of the confusion in parking.

Plans call for walks to be built from each corner of the yard to each corner of the building. There is still much work to be done on this part of the project, but it is well underway and cooperation of all citizens is essential.

The ladies clubs can give the movement a big boost by planting the ball rolling, and planting the outside parkways with beautiful flowers. Let's hear from the ladies.
